

Marshals' and Officials' Training

In the current 12 month period the MSA will organise around 121 training days targeted at its range of licensed and volunteer officials attracting over 8,500 participants. In addition, other specialist training is undertaken according to need at National, Regional and local level.

Training policy is co-ordinated by the MSA through its Training Steering Group with Annual Seminars led by senior MSA staff and delivered by a team of National and International Clerks of the Course and Stewards. Specialist training days are delivered by MSA staff and Specialist Committee members. A network of over 100 MSA Training Instructors – all trained to a common standard by the MSA – delivers the majority of Marshal Training Days.

Training Day organisation

Clubs or Associations intending to run Training days are advised to make contact with the MSA for advice and guidance. Training which conforms to certain MSA criteria may qualify for grant aid assistance.

National Marshals Register

The MSA administers a National Marshals Register, separately accommodating Race and Rally marshals from basic entry level through defined upgrading pathways to senior official. Details of the scheme rules for the Race Marshals Register and the Rally Marshals Register are circulated to all those registered and are available on request from the MSA.
